NSE-NSCCL gets ISO 27001:2013 certification

NATIONAL STOCK EXCHANGE of India (NSE), along with National Securities Clearing Corporation (NSCCL), a wholly-owned subsidiary of NSE and its clearing corporation, has been awarded the ISO 27001:2013 certification for their information security practices. The policies and practices have been assessed by auditors from the British Standards Institute (BSI). ISO 27001:2013 is a recognized standard for an information security management system. It is a framework of practices that ensures adequate safeguards for the confidentiality, integrity and availability of NSE's information and services.
